Carlos "on the Wings."A Centennial Holiday.

The Rival Railways.

BALTIMORE, AUGUST 27, 1870.

Hurrying, pushing, shouting, leaping, taking cheery and sorrowful, final directions given and taken, kissed and hand-shaking, three sharp and substantial iron, marble and granite blocks, the new City Hall, the Peabody Institute, and the new "Carrollton" hotel, the former but lately completed at a cost of $3,000,000. West Baltimore St., the broadest of the city, though not the grandest, is wider than business houses, and presents a busy and somewhat fashionable appearance during the few fashionable hours of the day. I confess to the reader that my "carriage" is "all aboard" of the grand conductor, and the New York "Limited Express" pulls slowly out of the Washington depot, bearing among other miscellaneous baggage, "the fortunes," as we may call them, of the undreamed-of, his unusually plentiful wallet, snuff-boxes for that Macca of American foot-sloggers, the much-talked-of "Centennial." But he is not part of his programme; he is "out" for an airing with a fair pair of eyes, and a good proportion of the time is spent in looking about him; and to mingle pleasure and profit, like a faithful correspondent, jots down his itinerary for the benefit of posterity. In short, he is "sauntering," content to accept and endure what the gods provide.

LOCAL NEWS.

ROUNTRY.—Last Monday night, the store of Messrs. Bates & Bowditch, in Washington Square, was entered by a thief or thieves, the iron bar which fastened one of the front shutters being bent so far as to enable the rogues to open the shutter and gain access to the store through the window, the glass of which was also broken. Goods to the amount of several hundred dollars were taken, comprising whole pieces of flannel, several dozen of wool socks, a large quantity of ladies' and gent's boots and shoes, a box of tobacco, cigars, etc., and a small amount of money, in coppers. The window was covered with matches, which had been used for light. In the opinion of the police, the robbery is supposed to have occurred between 10 and 11 o'clock. A person who is known to be an old offender was seen in the place early in the evening and detectives have been put upon his track.

REFORM CLUB.—At a meeting of the Weymouth Reform Club, it was voted to attend the meeting on Monday evening at North Weymouth, and receive the North Scituate Club, which the Weymouth Club was instrumental in organizing a few weeks since. The prospect of effecting an organization at Scituate was thought to be doubtful at the time, but the Weymouth Club had the satisfaction of witnessing the enrolment of 164 names before the meeting was closed.

In the "Rio Grande and Beyond" contribution to our columns this week an interesting description is given of the famous Red River Raft, on which the U. S. government has expended large amounts of money, in endeavoring to effect its removal.

COLLEGiate.—The eldest son of Mr. John Ford, of Weymouth Landing, has resigned his position as book-keeper in a city mercantile house, and will commence a course of study at a Catholic college preparatory to entering the priesthood.

Mrs. Isaac Binney, of Weymouth Landing, has made a very handsome bedpost from a single log, 16 feet long, 10 inches square, independent of state authorities, upon having a northern outlet. A charter for the line to connect the Northern Central, entering Baltimore from Harrisburg, which had also been leased by Scott, with its road from the south, was granted by the Maryland Legislature. The H. & O., had and still continue to pull their cars across the streets of Baltimore by horsepower, causing a delay in travel of an hour or more. They entered Washington near the Capitol and laid claim to the road in the north over that road, or come at all. The entering wedge of opposition came about the close of the war, when Mr. Scott and the Pennsylvania road obtained possession of the line entering Washington from the south, and the road became of legal right, independent of state authorities, upon having a northern outlet.

CAMP FIRE.—We learn that Fletcher Webster G. A. R. Post of Brockton, will visit Reynolds Post of Weymouth next Tuesday evening, and will be received with all the honors.

A REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.—To choose Delegates for the various Conventions, occurs at Weymouth Town Hall this (Friday) evening.

FATALITY.—Mr. John T. Edgar, aged 21 years, a brakeman on the freight train of the South Shore Railroad, was instantly killed about 4 o'clock last Monday afternoon. He was reaching out from his train to hand an apple to the fireman on the locomotive of the Plymouth passenger train, as the train was passing at North Scituate, when he was struck by the train and his neck broken. A coroner's jury returned a verdict that he came to his death by his own carelessness and no blame can be attached to the railroad or its employees.

RECOVERING.—Dr. N. Q. Tirrell, of East Weymouth, who has been seriously afflicted with paralysis for a number of months, has returned from Campton, N. H., improved in health, though not entirely free from the effects of the shock.

SCHOOL.—The Richmond St. school-house has been thoroughly renovated with a coat of paint outside and in the halls.—The furniture of the rooms has been transferred to the Broad street house, in exchange with that of the latter. The platform in one of the lower rooms has been moved to the opposite end of the building, to obtain a better light, and the house is now in excellent condition for a vigorous educational campaign. Much satisfaction is expressed in the transfer of Mr. Armstrong to this school, and under his judicious and skillful supervision the Richmond St. school will no doubt become a model of order and advancement.

ASSAULT.—A horse belonging to Dr. Hathaway, of Weymouth, was seized with tetanus last Wednesday morning, and despite all endeavors to alleviate his suffering, he remained in that condition until evening, when a rifle ball put an end to his misery. The horse was valued at $200.

CAMPAIGN LANTERNS.—of neat and attractive style give employment to a large number of hands at the fan manufactory of Messrs. Hunt & Allen, Weymouth. Large quantities of these lanterns are sent to New York and other points.

DEATH.—A brother of Rev. E. P. McElroy, formerly of East Weymouth, died in Orange Mass., last week.

Mr. Patrick Kenney, of Weymouth Landing, lost a valuable cow last week, the animal being attacked with disease and dying very suddenly.

appearance in general; it; yet it may be said, not triflingly, that an entire absence of the popular element and the lower and unclean tenement quarter, is perceptible to the least observant. Baltimore, with all its aristocracy, takes good care of its poor, whatever may be said against its extravagance. Many of the elegant, well-furnished, and taken, kiosks and refreshment-stands, "all aboard" of the grand conductor, and the New York "Limited Express" pulls slowly out of the Washington depot, bearing among other miscellaneous baggage, "the fortunes" of his passengers. The animal is "sauntering" content to accept and endure what the gods provide.

Perhaps this is what impels him to look about him and study the faces of his fellow-travellers; for the train has left the city limits and is dashing along at a speed that would be frightful were it not a safe and rapid one. LOCAL NEWS.

YACHT RACE.—A great crowd of people assembled at Quincy Neck last Saturday afternoon, to witness the last of the series of regattas of the Quincy Yacht Club. Particular interest was manifested in the contest between the Vision, Capt. Worster, and the Nettie, Capt. Whitmarsh, both of the first class and of about the same sailing qualities. The Vision won the race, the record being 1 h. 41 m. 52 sec., and 1 h. 43 m. 22 sec. In the same class the Folly, Capt. Sheppard, recorded 1 h. 44. 25, and the Secret, Capt. Binney, 1 h. 46. 19.

BRAINTREE TEMPERANCE UNION.—The monthly meeting of the above society was held in the lecture-room of the Union Congl. Church, last Sunday evening, the room being well filled with the friends of the cause. Dea. J. Ward, Chisholm presided, and after singing by the audience and prayer by Mr. D. E. Pratt, the Secretary, Mrs. L. W. Holbrook, read the record of the preceding meetings of the quarter. Gilbert Nash, Esq., was then introduced as the speaker of the evening, his subject being announced as "The Bible in its relation to the Liquor Traffic."

The assertion made by the advocates of the traffic that Bible testimony could be found in favor of wine drinking was met with passing proofs that, in the cases especially mentioned in the Old Testament Scriptures, wine drinking was coupled with uncleanness, and that the wine referred to by our Saviour was the simple juice of the grape—not intoxicating. An argument against the traffic, the speaker said we must work, speak, and labor for our own savor, for fear of losing our standing among the ignorant as themselves. Since the war, however, this section has filled up with people from the western states, and a more industrious, progressive, and enterprising community has been introduced. The existence of the Raft has mothered result, for there seems to be no evil without some corresponding good. The distribution of the waters from their natural channels has been a blessing, and notwithstanding the early formation of the Mississippi, the vast and beautiful forests, the banks of nature's own water-courses; and though the glorious beauty of this fair southern land has been faintly shadowed in these sketches, it is nevertheless most inviting, because more novel, and leave the noble Red River to find its speedy way to the great Gulf.

South Weymouth.—Arrangements are being made for the pleasure of the guests invited to the reunion of the members of the Weymouth A. & I. Society, and as all stockholders are invited guests they will be well paid for their investment, in the pleasure of the occasion. While every one felt that the enjoyment of the reunion of last year was complete, the President is sparing no pains or expense to make the coming one of even greater interest, and with a committee of twenty-one ladies to suggest and carry out his plans, and with such helpers as Messrs. Raymond, Shaw and Spear, we trust the success of the enterprise is assured. It is possible some of the stockholders of the society may fail to receive invitations to the reunion, and may failing to receive invitations will consider themselves included in the invite.

Business is reviving, and we understand that Messrs. J. Reed & Sons have orders sufficient to employ the full capacity of their factory.

On Wednesday evening Daniel Pratt is engaged by some of our citizens to speak in Music Hall. We suppose that the community do not expect to become much enlightened by the lecture, and to us there is a thought of sadness that while God has brought to some physical and some mental deformity, there should be any who would gather to laugh at the exhibition of either one or the other. Should we not rather, as we follow in the footsteps of one who, in tender sympathy ministered to the mind diseased, do to others as we would others do should to us? While we grieve over the wreck of what might have been a brilliant mind, we should pity and screen them from the thoughtlessness that would place them in positions to exhibit their deformity.

C. E. N. —The mammoth ice house at Great Pond has passed into new hands, who have performed arrangements for taking ice direct from the water by steam power, and expect thereby to increase the speed of filling two fold.

Z. L. Blecknell, Esq. lost a valuable horse last Friday. The horse had been sick about a week, and those who had charge of the animal were talking about putting an end to his misery, when the animal got upon his feet and rushed out of the stable at a rapid gait. When opposite the Congl. church he fell and immediately expired.

The members of Delphi Circle, T. of H., enjoyed a very pleasant excursion last Saturday afternoon, to "Aunt Nabby's Grove," indulging in a clam bake and other good things in the eating line. About 25 companions with their families, participated in the excursion.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A little daughter of Mr. R. V. Merchant, while at play in the woodhouse, fell from a beam about six feet from the floor, striking on her head near the temple. Her mother, hearing the noise of the fall, rushed out and took her into the house, where in a short time she became insensible, consciousness of her brain having ensued. She was called to attend her, had no knowledge of her, and she lingered until Wednesday, when death relieved her from suffering.

Mr. John Garey, brother of Capt. A. J. Garey, who has resided in England for the past seven years, and who has been engaged in the nail business there, died of Bright's disease recently, his friends having announced his decease.

Mr. George W. Thayer, of South Braintree, read an original poem at the celebration of the 60th birthday of his aunt, Mrs. Abigail Hinckley, at Marston's Mills, Cape Cod, on Monday, Aug. 28th.

VACANCIES FILLED.—At the recent meeting of the School Committee, of Weymouth, J. H. Stetson, Esq., Asst. Cashier of First National Bank, of South Weymouth, and Samuel W. Reed, Esq., Attorney, Weymouth Landing, were elected to the vacancies in the Board occasioned by the declination of Mrs. Waterman and the resignation of F. W. Lewis, Esq., and both gentlemen have accepted the positions.

FRUIT THIEVES DISAPPOINTED.—Mr. R. K. Trott, of Weymouth, has suffered considerably in year past by depredations of fruit thieves, and this season he determined to take time by the forelock and gather the fruit from a choice pear tree in advance of the rogues. A couple of young men, unaware of this early gathering, entered the premises a few nights since and one of them climbing into the tree struck the boughs vigorously while the other stood ready to pick up the fruit. To their disappointment was added the mortification of being caught at by some of the family, who were spectators of the scene, unobserved by the rogues.

THE VINEYARD.—A heavy blow on Saturday did much damage to the canvas canopy over the Methodist Tabernacle, and the shrub of the engine, etc., were damaged. A pair of individuals in the seat in front of the writer, with that unconscious air of unconcern as to temporal surroundings that unerringly denotes the hirde and grouch, present or prospective, who are riding in a pair of mischievous chaises across the way are concocting some conspiracy against the Washington Monument, and the glorious prospect from its summit; a drive to Federal Hill, where Gen. An unsuccessful attempt to enter the clothing store of Messrs. Estes & Whiting was made on the night of 2d ult.—The sash of the main door was cut at the top and bottom, but the robbers were probably frightened before reaching the store, as the hardware store of C. G. Soule also showed traces of their work. One window was evidently cut with a chisel, and a slight crack was made in the glass. Nothing unusual was seen by the watchman, and no clue to the culprits has yet been gained.

Domestic Receipts.

To MAKE RUSSIAN SALAD.—Boil some carrots and turnips in salted water with a small piece of butter, but do not let them be overdone, when cold cut them up, and add a certain number of pieces of the size of an olive, eat some beetroot in the same way; take an equal part—say a cupful—of each of the above, and similar quantity of preserved fish, not dried; two table-spoonfuls capers and French pickles; the same of anchovies cut into small pieces; a couple of dozen or more olives; add mustard and pepper; ornament it with yolks of eggs, salad oil, and season with salt and pepper; ornament it with hard boiled eggs and lobster.

Aruka Porpoise.—Make a paste; roll it out, place it in a basin, rub it with trappings; press out the planks so that the crust may be of an equal thickness all round; peel and cut up four large apples, put half of them in; then add table-spoonfuls of molasses, sugar and one of clove; put in the rest of the apples; cover the top with a layer of white cheese; if it does not allow that the water will not get in, tie a cloth over it; put it into boiling water, and boil fast for two hours and a half if the crust be made of dripping, and an hour longer if it be made of shot; take off the cloth, pass a knife around the edge of the basin; turn out the pudding carefully when sending it to the table.

Rhubarb Torte.—Strip off the skin, and then cut up the rhubarb into pieces as long as fingers; let it soak in water with a quarter of a pound of moist sugar, no water; grease the edge of the dish with dipping, make a paste as follows: Rub two ounces of dripping into six ounces of flour, then mix it with cold water; knead it into a firm paste as follows: Roll it out and place it on the torte; add two more ounces of rhubarb, more dripping, then roll it up in the form of a bolster, then roll it out twice more; then the edge of the dish with a strip of paste, wet it with water; roll out the rest of the paste to the size of the dish, pull it over, press it lightly with the thumb, round the edge, make a hole in the center, and have for an hour.

Baked Honey.—To a cupful of cold honey add two cupsful of sugar, then add two pounds of turnips, some of white sugar, a little salt, and three eggs. Beat the eggs separately. When well mixed put in sugar and a little salt, and go on beating, while you gradually add the milk. Lastly stir in the white of the eggs, and bake in a buttered dish until light and brown.

Potatoes à la Maitre d'Hotte.—Choose smallish potatoes, not as nearly as possible in size; then wash them, place a saucer of salt water over them, drain off the water and put them into a dish, with a table-spoonful of Maitre d'Hotte butter. How to make Maitre d'Hotte butter: Put a cupful of ounces of butter in a basin, juice of a lemon, white sugar and salt, a small quantity of chopped parsley, then mix the whole and let it stand in a cool place till wanted.

Food Products of the United States.

Iowa produces the largest spring wheat crop of any State, the production of the U.S. being 2,200,000 bushels, and that of New York 1,549,533 bushels, while Wisconsin ranks next with 24,375,435 bushels. Ohio raises the most winter wheat, 27,625,753 of the 175,103 bushels produced in the United States. Pennsylvania supplies one-fifth of the rye produced in this country, 3,577,641 bushels. South Carolina grows a large quantity of buckwheat, raising 3,044,000 bushels of the 129,921,395 of the 760,914,249 the community produces. Illinois also takes the lead in the corn crop, growing 42,789,581 out of the total 282,107,153 bushels. California produces the largest barley crop, at 8,763,490 out of a total of 20,761,305 bushels. Kansas is the largest center of hemp-growing, raising 3,044,000 of a total of 9,821,721 bushels. Missouri takes the lead among the cotton-growing States. Ohio produces more than half the lead of the United States. Kentucky grows more than half the hemp crop of our country. California produces nine-tenths of our native silk cocoons. Ohio contributes one-sixth of the wool produced in the United States, and twice as much as California. New York produces more than one-eighth of the hay crop, or nearly twice as much as Pennsylvania, which furnishes the next largest figures than line.

New York furnishes more than two-thirds of the hop crop of the country, South Carolina supplies nearly half the tobacco crop, and Kentucky, Georgia, and that of Louisiana, nearly twice as much as the rest of the country. Georgia is next, with 7,000,000 pounds ahead of Louisiana. Nearly all the rice comes from these three States. Of the 273,734,311 pounds of tobacco produced in the country, 105,335,828 pounds are grown in Kentucky. Virginia comes next with 38,036,361 pounds. Louisiana contributes nearly all the sugar and maple syrup produced in the country, one-third of the sugar from maple, while New York produces one-fourth of the sugar and maple syrup. Ohio contributes one-sixth of the wool produced in the United States, and nearly twice as much as California. New York produces more than one-eighth of the hay crop, or nearly twice as much as Pennsylvania, which furnishes the next largest figures than line.

Canna Fruta.—Mrs. Katie E. sends to the Tribune the method of canning fruit which she has used with entire success for several years. She says: "I heat the bottles and jars, then fill them with fruit, previously prepared, and pour over it till the cans are full, then put the lids on and boil the fruit to a boil. When the bottles are filled with fruit, I turn on enough of the boiling syrup to the fruit, and seal them up at once. Then I put the jars in the pantry, or where they can be undisturbed, and pour boiling water around the bottles, just to the top, cover the vessels, and let them remain until the water is cold. Then I wipe off the bottles, test them and put them away. Occasionally I find a jar imperfectly sealed. In that case I set it on a plate in a kettle of water, and when the water boils heat it on, till it is up with boiling water and seal again. I've used this method for all sorts of fruit, but find that pears need a little more cooking if at all hard."

Half a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit, add water to the syrup until the sugar is melted, then the syrup is clear; then put in the peaches and let them boil until heated through. Take the peaches out with a perforated ladle, and then, to every eight pounds of fruit put two teaspoons of Speen's thimble. Put it into the boiling fluid after the fruit is taken out. Pour the hot syrup over the peaches, and no sealing of jars necessary. This method has been proved to be reliable, and if you prefer to put up your fruit without sugar, it is very good by using more water, but otherwise proceeding as directed above.

Her Clothes.

During a "town meeting" the question of equalization of school money was being discussed. One old gentleman, in the course of the debate, exclaimed in great heat: "Why, Mr. Moderator, the money is not equally divided. In district No. 7 we have sixty-seven dollars for every one scholar—one bare bit of God and nothing else." Now sir, what about he does in such a place? There was a pause for a moment, when a chap with a pipe in his mouth at the back of the room bawled out: "Take the money and buy her some clothes."

Sitting Bull's Sun Dance—The Men who Killed Custer.

The Helena (M. T.) Independent says: The Sioux, while having many tribal relations and dialects, are now divided into two great families, the Dakotas and the Lakotas. The former are the Teton who ruled supreme west of the Missouri river. The name Teton implies People of the Lodges or those who live west of the Missouri. Tanka Yotunka, or Sitting Bull, is at least forty years of age, has dark hair, gray eyes, is five feet nine inches tall, and weighs 200 pounds. He is a Sioux, and the slow one—a generic term applied by way of sarcasm. Sitting Bull speaks only Sioux and Arickaree. On the sixteenth of June Sitting Bull and his bands left upon General Crook and achieved a partial victory. Runners were immediately dispatched to carry the news to the agencies, and accordingly a number of young braves left Standing Rock, Cheyenne agency and Fort Peck reservation and joined Sitting Bull. Before, however, they could be accepted, they had to pass through the ordeal of the sun dance.

These ceremonies were held in a wild canyon of the Big Horn mountains, and their description has been given by W. C. Gooding, a young trader who is studying the aboriginal character. The sun dance commenced on the eighteenth of June, and from its commencement to the two hundred warriors were not to eat or drink anything. Under shade of trees, the men were crowded around the sun dance. The two hundred warriors were ranged around a medicine pole, their bodies blackened with charcoal, and wearing nothing but a short skirt or buckskin around their loins and eagle feather ornaments. They would dance at intervals of an hour, and were then allowed a short repose, and then again started the dancing. They have not remembrance thin names of many of the leading chiefs. Four Horns and Black Moon are the exceptions. Each nation has two or three chiefs present, and they all insist that they did not go to the sun dance, but the Sioux braves crowded them back and they took up arms. He also says that there are no Yanktonites with them. He estimates the hostiles as consisting of from 8,000 to 10,000 fighting men.

The Saranches and Cheyennes are most numerous, and they all have war paint, children, wives, and several children. At Standing Rock, but they did not engage in the fight. One of these chiefs started to go to the whites with a gun, but was shot. There are no white men co-operating with them. He does not know how much ammunition they have, but they have plenty of guns and pistols. He thinks they got them engaged in subduing the savages of the Western frontier, and, probably, the Sioux and the Sioux Indians, and the Blackfeet. They captured many horses during the fight, but only a few minutes. The Blackfeet Indians made many presents of horses, etc., to various in order to keep them from his flesh. After having hung for three hours in the gazing sun he was sent down and carried away. Another young warrior, who wanted to show what a brave heart he had, lay down on his face and had six arrows put in his back and shoulders; then turned over and had two more put in his breast. Then, rising to his feet, he still hung, and, after being hit in the skull, he fell. The Indians are in constant alarm, and there is no sleep in the house to inquire concerning the safety of the boy, he was sent down and carried away. WEEKLY GAZETTE AND REPORTER

FRIDAY, SEPT. 6, 1876.

Notes from Gotham.
The science of extortion. From the Battery to Central Park. An evening with Gilmore.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 2, 1876.

With all its bustle and speculation, its public shortcomings and its political frauds, its cynical and indifferent police, the misery of its poor and the overabundance of its riches, no one can ever mistake the true status of this, the first city in America. Everything about it is really cosmopolitan; all things are well and thoroughly reduced to system. From the moment you land upon its shores to the instant when you shake its dust from your feet and cry peccatum your astonishment is divided by its economy and its extortions. When you look upon it, you feel in preserving you have long enough to live in comfort or shouting back at the larv, and are brave enough to select the most prepossessing carriage in defiance of the threatening gauntlet, the rival jehus, you have won your first victory. When you are seated in your carriage, the sincerity with which he responds "two dollars," is only equalled by the promptness and urbanity of his movements, when you look him in the eye and tender the less for it. These are the scenes of this city during the team belonged to Mr. Jos. Pratt.

DITTO.—On the same day, J. D. Burrell left Boston standing near his shop, when the horse started to cross from the shop to the barn and came in contact with a clothes-line, taking the top of the wagon off. He then ran around the house, without further injury.

Several public spirited citizens of our village have hard at work excavating a well in Commercial Square, opposite the site of the former Temple of Honor Hall. The pump and piping are secured through subscription, and as a warning post will be maintained, there horses will now procure water without further injury.

The Weymouth Iron Company works have suspended operations for want of water, for so long it is impossible to tell, Rev. S. L. Gracie and family have returned from the Vineyard. Mrs. Gracie is suffering with neuralgia.

As we are informed, at an early day.

Over 200 ladies and gentlemen were present at the entertainment, and the occasion was one of great pleasure.

LOCAL NEWS.

The REUNION of the members of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society, held in the exhibition building on the Fair grounds, last Monday evening, was an event of marked interest, tending to largely promote the welfare of the Society, and reflecting great credit upon its liberal hearted President, Albert Tiffrel, Esq., who personally assumed the financial burden and labored actively to make the reunion a complete success, in which effort he was ably seconded by ladies and gentlemen of different villages of the town, their united efforts culminating in the most pleasant gatherings of the season. A portion of the afternoon was devoted to trotting on the track, a running race being first in order, the entries being C. A. Morris' "Fanny," Albert Tiffrel's "Texas" and J. Wilkins' "Appoosse," the latter driven in fine style by a son of Mr. Wilkins, and carrying off the honors. Though the boy is but 12 years of age, he manifested a skill in driving which would do credit to a veteran of the turf. A well-contested race also took place between "Pocahontas," "Lady Alice," and "Red Rover," in which "Lady Alice" won two heats and "Red Rover" one. The spectators were entertained by a number of songs, and the evening closed with a burlesque of the gorillas.

A pear tree on the premises of Mr. Geo. W. Whitten, at East Weymouth, in addition to a burden of fruit, exhibits a good show of blossoms.

FIRE.—Last Saturday noon, fire was discovered in the hay loft of the stable on the estate of Mrs. Lydia T. Cushing, Main St., South Weymouth, and an alarm being given, the fire engine was promptly on hand; but the direction of wind and a high wind at the same time made all the efforts of the firemen unavailing to save the stable and dwelling adjoining. Several other buildings in the vicinity too fire from sparks, and it was feared that an extensive conflagration would ensue, the Cushing House being especially endangered, and only escaping destruction by a vigorous application of the chemical of the extinguisher. The portion of the dwelling containing with the stable was saved by Mr. Edgar P. Nash, for a boot stamping and filling establishment, and so rapid was the progress of the fire that nothing could be saved, his loss including engine, boiler, three stamping machines, two perforators, quilter and gilling machine, with dies, &c., valued at $3000, on which there was an insurance of $1000. Mr. Nash also lost his carriage and harness, and stock of household goods, and clothing of himself and wife. Mrs. Cushing's furniture we learn, was removed. The Cushing House furniture was also taken out, its destruction apprehended. The buildings were insured for $1000. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Nash, with commendable enterprise, has made arrangements for the immediate restoration of his business, has bought a house in the rear of the Cushing House, on which a shop will be set up at once, and he will soon be in readiness to furnish boot manufacturer with his class of work.

ANNUAL FAIR.—The programme of the fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society will be found in another column, presenting features of interest which will serve to attract a large gathering. The base ball match between the King Phillips and Actives, two clubs of much note, will furnish a choice entertainment for the lovers of that sport, and the entire array of indoor sports is sufficiently prominent to interest the members of all interested in the welfare of the Society. The committee in the different departments of the exhibition in the hall are making vigorous efforts to present a display which will be worthy of the patronage of our citizens, and be equal, if not superior to those of former years.

The committee on music for the occasion had zealously labored to procure abundant talent in that direction, and the supper being ended, the President introduced the South Weymouth Choral, who gave a fine selection, followed by Miss Ida Young of East Weymouth, Miss Fannie W. Bartlett, of North Weymouth, Mrs. Emily J. Keen, of Abington, Mr. C. W. Bailey, of East Weymouth, soloists, and the North Weymouth Quartette, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Foss and Mr. W. F. Burwell. The musical performance was intermingled with addresses from Rev. Messrs. Slack, Wright, and Stanton, Hon. Edw. Avery, Hon. James Humphrey, Dr. T. H. Dearing, and Edmund Tiffrel, Esq., President of the Hingham Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

A loud call was made for Alivah Raymond Jr., who came to the platform and made a few remarks alluding to the form of invitation to the Reunion, which debarred children from attendance, and he proposed the youngsters would inquire of their parents whether they "had seen the elephant" at the Reunion, he would introduce that animal, on which the band struck up a march, and from the rear of the hall was seen approaching a well developed counterpart of the tusker, who was received with great applause, and created as much mirth as did the Irish woman with her barrel of beer, exhibited on the track by the same agent at one of the annual fairs, while the probationary law was in force.

The Reunion exercises closed with a social dance, which continued to a late hour, and in which a large number of the guests participated. It is seldom that our residents have the pleasure of attending so agreeable a gathering as that on Monday evening, and the annual reunions of this Society will tend more closely unite the people of the old town of Weymouth in union "one and inseparable."

ESTABLISHMENT.—Mr. A. Prescott Nash, president of a new cordaling material for boots and shoes, has been engaged in a suit at law against parties in New York who had intruded upon his patent, and his claim as the originator of the material as applied to the manufacture has been sustained by the Board of Examiners in Chief, on appeal at the Patent Office.

The crop of potatoes in this vicinity is remarkably light this season, owing to the long drought. A resident of East Weymouth commenced digging last Monday, and after opening over 200 hills with a product of about one bushel, gave up in disgust.

Rev. G. Cole, formerly of Weymouth, officiated at the funeral services of the only son of Mr. Francis Leach, last Friday. Mr. Cole has returned from Minnesota, with the intention of locating in this State, being improved in health by his sojourn at the West.

Wera I asked to the best place to spend an evening in this metropolis, I should毫不犹豫ly say Gilmore's Garden, the largest and most ventilated theatres, the grandest and best equipped position of a parquette chair; he is at liberty to roam and stroll through miles of winding walks, among flower beds, light statuary, and trickling fountains, and the grandest music chairs are abroad, and put his cigar or pipe to his pleasure. At one end of the garden, a height of thirty to fifty feet, suggests the nail-surf; at the other a group of Swiss chalets, built in fir and pine, the cool and rugged mountain side; and amidst all the enchanting scenes of the East Weymouth.

ACCIDENT.—A week ago last Monday, at Mrs. Geo. W. French was passing from her dining room into the porch, she made a misstep and injured her knee-pan. She is quite comfortable now.

RUNAWAY.—Last Thursday, as Mr. Chan Carter, with his wife and child, were proceeding to the shore, at the junction of Green and Commercial streets, the rear wheel broke down, overturning the carriage and throwing the occupants out. The horse ran a short distance, and tripping, rolled over and over into a hollow by the roadside. Fortunately neither of Mr. Carter's sons were injured, except receiving bruises. The horse also escaped injury.

The team belonged to Mr. Jos. Pratt.

YARD GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

Domestic Receipts.

To Kill Bedbugs.—The best thing to exterminate bedbugs is turpentine.

Red Avra.—To get rid of little red ants place leaves of laney plant on the shelves of your rooms or closets. The ants will quickly disappear.

Iodine.—To use iodine without discoloration, take hypophosphite soda, one ounce; aqua, two scorpions. Mix and add to the iodine well dissolved. Only a small quantity of iodine is needed. Apply with a camel's hair brush.

TOMATO CAVIAR.—Take one peck of tomatoes, quarter pound pepper, quarter pound allspice, quarter pound white pepper, two scorpions, six tablespoonts salt, half gallon vinegar. Boil slowly six hours. Cool and then bottle.

STAINS IN MATTRE.—To remove iron stains from clothes, make a mixture of white vinegar, two drachmas; also, two drachmas; loofah of iron, one drachm; water, four ounces. Dissolve. Dampen a piece of cotton flannel, and apply to the part you wish to erase, and afterward wash with water.

COROLINA WATERS.—To make an excellent cologne take one pint of odorous eucalyptus spirit and add: Oil of bergamot, sixty drops; oil of lemon, sixty drops; oil of clove, two drops; oil of rose, two drops; tincture of musk, sixty drops; pure benzoin, sixty drops; oil of amber, one drop; tincture of ambergris, fifteen drops; tincture of benzoine, three drops; tincture of benzoin, eight drops.

BROWNS BROWN.—One teaspoonful of brown flour, one teaspoonful of white India meal, three-fourth teaspoonful of rice flour, one-half teaspoonful of wholemeal, one pint of thick milk, tea-spoonful salaratus, one teaspoonful of salt. Mix well together with a spoon for five minutes. Bake in a greased covered pan for three hours, in a moderate oven. Let it remain in the pan with the cover on for ten or fifteen minutes after taking it from the oven.

From Barnes' Treatise.

A correspondent of the American Agriculturalist says: Some fifteen years ago I had a small apple tree that leaned considerably. I tried to straighten it, but it would not stand by a compromise, so I cut it to the stake.

The next year this limb blossomed full, and not another blossom appeared on the tree; and, as Tim Bunker said, "It set me to thinking," and I came to the conclusion that the string was so tight that it prevented the sap from returning to the roots; consequently it formed no new growth.

On the second year, I cut the top off a couple of near trees, large enough to bear, but which never blossomed, I took a coarse twine and wrapped it several times around the trees above the lower limbs and tied it tight as I could. The next spring all the topgrowth, the cord blossomed as white as a sheet, and there was not one blossom below where the cord was tied.

I tried the experiment on several trees, almost with the same result. I think it is a much better way than cutting off the roots.

In early summer, say June or July, wind a strong cord around the tree, or a single limb, and tie—the tighter the better—and you will find the result satisfactory; the next winter or spring the cord may be taken off.

Taxes for Farmers.

1. Take good papers and real them.

2. Keep an account of farm operations.

3. Do not leave implements scattered over the farm exposed to sun, rain and heat.

4. Repair tools and buildings at a proper time, and do not suffer a single third-fold expenditure of time and money.

5. Use money judiciously, and do not attend auction sales to purchase all kinds of trumpery because it is cheap.

6. Set your teams well, repair them, and do not graze in the meadows, gardens or orchards.

7. Do not refuse correct experiments, in a small way, of many new things.

9. Practice economy by giving stock shelter during the winter, also good feeding, taking care of all that is unsound, half rotten and half dead.

10. Do not keep tribes of dogs and cats around the premises, who eat more in a month than they are worth in all their lifetime.

Fashion Notes.

Bonnets will have long strings in the fall.

Hats of every kind are to be worn on the fore-head.

Fancy feathers are to take the place of ostrich plumes.

Velvet bonnets will take the place of felt ones this fall.

Turbans will be the fashionable round hat next season.

Greenish tinted creams is the new shade of this popular color.

American greens and very dark bronze shades are among the new colors.

Undressed kid gloves of very dark shades are brought out for next season.

Pierced ladies are wearing low, loose collars made in nets of wide silk threads.

V. T. now Derby hats have high, sharp points, with brims pressed flat on the sides.

The new imported suits and garments of all kinds are profusely ornamented with buttons.

Navy blue, almost black, is seen in the new fall goods for polonaises. It is to be piped with cardinal red and worn over cardigan red silk petticoats.

The new French flowers are made of materials producing startling effects, such as silk petticoat roses, wheat of green velvet, and shaded leaves of velvet, satin and chenille.

White dresses of antique damask linen are very much worn at the summer resorts. They are profusely trimmed with Hamberg embroidery and ribbon bows and ruffles.

Appreciative Listeners.

A gentleman discovered an exquisite poetic gift in his wife, and, in consequence, the attention of two ladies to her. They listened with intent ear while the gentle girl gave voice to the glowing and graceful thoughts of the poet. When the reading was finished, the gentleman turned to his companion for a word of appreciation. He saw their faces glow, their lips pale in an intensity of admiration, and their eyes bright with admiration. "Look, there!" exclaimed one of the ladies with the utmost eagerness, "that woman—pointing to a lady on the opposite side of the street—"has got a pale bosom-toned up in the back! I should think," addressing her companion, "she'd have a good time getting into it when she wanted to dress in a hurry."

"I should think so, too," returned the other, "but it hangs pretty, don't you think so?"

Two DISEASES.—The marketmen of Boston have had a public dinner with our wife, and the Journal says, "conducted with great success." Not long ago, in this city, which the papers next morning characterized as brilliant and successful, but they omitted to mention that some of the young men who attended it were carried away in such a state of intoxication that they made their way back to college lying prone upon the floor of the car.

Lee Miller-Strickland.

The pleasing people out in Minnesota who formed a copartnership, terminally at will, in the business of matrimony and general profane, under the firm name of Miller & Strickland, have had their difficulties since. They have counteracted a certain streak of conduct of the English on the relations of the sexes. It seemed to meet their case. We have already chronicled the addition of a baby to the assets of the firm. They named him Leo, partly perchance on the sex and Leo principle current in Esopus, but mostly because he was the first born, and a son. They also set forth that his name is Miller-Strickland, and that it ought to be, because at present the mother goes no share in the nomination of the infant, which is a cruel injustice. Strickland, it may be remembered, is the female member of the firm.

This is a great principle which an advanced thinker may probably be burnt at the stake for as well as any of his other great principles. We hope that this hypothesized infant will grow up to be a wiser and better man than his predecessor, and, eschewing around, in the track of his name, as to speak, the germ of a great truth. But it is not like the expression of the face and the manner, which would be some practical inconvenience. If Mr. Brown forms a cominical copartnership with Miss Jones; Felix Brown-Jones will do very well. But when he in his turn grows up and advances the pickets of human thought a peg or two, by making a loose and casual matrimonial arrangement with Mrs. Miller-Strickland, it may be a little unwise, but one aunty did not like the expression of the face and the manner, which would be some practical inconvenience.

Finally it was agreed that they should take the artist's advice and strangle him in the high chair. After much ringing of bells the baby was induced to sit with father and mother, and the trouble began. The baby wanted to take off its neck, because it had such a pretty fat arm, but its mamma was afraid that it might be cold. Then one aunty thought he would be so much more comfortable in a high chair and sit him in a big arm chair, but the other thought that such a performance would be very immoral, indecent, and a conflict seemed imminent.

PARK, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

Honorable Farm Hints.

FERTILIZERS.—Where the soil has not been well dressed with rich, rotted manure, some active fertilizer will be useful. Now that we can procure guano guaranteed as to quality, we would choose this for fall set, before sowing our grain. It is well known that phosphoric acid is generally most effective when used in the spring. One hundred and fifty pounds of guano, costing about $4.50 per ton, would make good dressing, to be harrowed in before sowing, or with the seed if it is sown broadcast.

SURFACE DRAINING.—When they are necessary, surface drains should be made so soon as the fields are sown, and not left until the rains begin. Better also, to clear out the dead furrows on the higher parts of the field, and to make outlets from the lower parts, where surface water might accumulate, will be sufficient.

GRASS SEED.—Timothy or orchard grass is better to be sown as soon as the wheat is drilled or covered, than in the spring. A peck of the former, or six pecks of the latter, is not too much for a square rod, cut, but it is better to sow it in the spring, four to six parts of the former, or a bushel of the latter, would be a proper quantity per acre.

GRASBLANDS.—Meadows and pastures may be too dressed with advantage at any spare time during the month. Coarse manure had better be left in the yard to rot, but if any well rotted manure is on hand, it may be evenly spread, and the humus broken by drawing a half harrow or a log end crusher over it.

Clover Seed.—The high price of clover seed makes it of advantage to save all that can be gathered. Five bushels of clover seed per acre may be saved, if it is made an object to do it. This is worth as much as an average crop of hay. The ground is not exhausted by it. It attacks the clover root, however, but it is said that the roots last longer upon the ground, the heads may be gathered and raked into heaps by a boy following the machine. As the stalks are of little account for fodder, the clover may be exposed to the rain and wind without damage, and with advantage, as the seed will hull out better for it. It may be raked in when perfectly dry, and packed away to be threshed in the winter. It is difficult to keep it dry by any way of stacking it out of doors.

CORNU COAX.—The value of corn-stalks for fodder is too often lost sight of in harvesting. To save the fodder as much as possible, the crop should be harvested as soon as the corn is glazed. After that nothing is gained by letting the crop stand, as the stalks are risked by reason of storms or frost. When the whole stalks are cut, but only the tops above the ears, the fodder may be gathered soon after the first of the month. Binding in small sheaves is a good plan.

SOWING CORN.—Strumule.—Where the practice of sowing the corn stable with wheat prevails, the unsightly method of leaving the strips upon which the corn has been sown, should be avoided, both on account of the loss of appearance and its want of economy. A considerable amount of ground is wasted and weeds are encouraged. It is not much trouble to haul off the shocks and set them up in some place where the corn can be hauled conveniently, and what trouble there is in it is well repaid.

Dried Tomatoes.

Housekeepers in the country, who have many tomatoes and few cans, can easily preserve a large quantity of this very easily raised fruit by drying it. This method retains little acidity, and consequently the fruit will not spoil the tomatoes, as for canning. Boil them slowly in a porcelain kettle or store jar until the original quantity is reduced one-half. Then season them with the proportion of a teaspoonful of salt and half a cupful sugar to a gallon of steamed tomatoes. Spread on the plates and dry quickly, without scorching. As the fruit dries, the pulp becomes thin and fruit takes shape, scamps it so that both sides may dry, and let the contents of several plates, heated up lightly, stand in bright sunshine a little while before putting away. Store in bags and keep dry.

How to Eat an Apple.—When wanted for use, put a small quantity soaking in cold water, and cover with a cloth. Strain off the water, and the same water hour and a half—three or four hours—keeping boiling water at hand to add if it grows thick, and so is in danger of burning. It should be quite thin when done, and may be thickened with bread crumbs, and seasoned with a little sugar, salt, and butter; of course tomatoes should not be made sweet.

A Pincushion for the Crows.—The crows are quite fond of bugs and worms and little field mice, and young snakes as he is of the farmer's crop. He is a good policeman about the farm-house and drives away the hawk, who can do twice the amount of mischief he is guilty of. He mows the grass-fields and pulls out the caterpillars and all manner of pests, and probably saves many other insects, if he is hard on the crows, nevertheless a game crow is turned out after him to be sent to wag his annual war on the squash bugs. His satiate attendants put his head on one side and watched him for a few minutes, as if to see how he did it. Comprehending the business at last, he went for those bugs with a will, and cleared the patch in fine style. He took it for a business the remainder of the season, insuring a fine crop.

A Remedy for Ivy Poison.

Many people become poisoned either by handling or exposure to poison ivy. Generally the first symptoms are tried with the liniment, and the poison is slightly thrown off by the process of nature. There is, however, a remedy which is vouches for by a correspondent of an agricultural paper as a sure and speedy cure. The agent is common lime, a small piece of which should be dissolved in water, and the water applied to the part affected. This remedy has been tried with entire success, the application of the lime water affording immediate relief. The remedy is simple, and should be widely known.

Farmers and Rheumatism.

Why are farmers so liable to rheumatism? Because they wear wet clothing, heat and suddenly chill the body, overeat, and thereby have a cold, and because they do not take the exercise in a clean, vigorous and healthy condition. If farmers would avoid suddenly cooling the body after hard exercise, if they would be careful not to go with wet clothing and wet feet, and if they would not overeat, when in an exhausted condition, and had the body, using much friction, they would have less rheumatism. The same rule applies to others than farmers.

To Aggravating.

Two young women met. They had not seen each other for two months. The following conversation ensued:

"Been to Long Branch. Where were you?"

"To Saratoga. Any offers?"

"Yes, nine; two of them count. You have any?"

"One. One was an ent."

And that girl who had been to Long Branch went home and shed bitter tears of vexation, through the fact of the master was they had neither of them had any offers at all, and both knew it. She decided that another time she will let the other girl speak first, and tell her story afterward.

Turkish Atrocities at Batik.

The special correspondent of the London "Daily News" gives the following account of the horrors committed in Palais on the occasion of a Greek wedding, which is an interesting and melancholy ceremony. Weddings among the Greeks are the most solemnized in the world, and at home, and from the nature of the rite must be very trying to the persons principally concerned, who are compelled to remain in the center of the room, on one side of which stand the bride and bridegroom, each holding a long lighted candle, on the opposite side the officiating priests. Behind the former the host man takes his place; he has an important part to fill in the ceremony, and is ranked as a representative of the family of the bride. They bade him sit down, when looking down I perceived he had stepped on a human skull partly hid among the grass. It was quite dry and hard, and might, to all appearances, have been there for two or three years, so well had the dogs eaten their fill, and the numerous bones lay close by as they cast toward the center in order to gain the better view. Many prayers are chanted by the priests and their assistants, matting the floor to the ears of a classical scholar, with the exception of the often repeated "Kyrie eleison," in forms so pronounced a person almost always present. The priest was very elaborate indeed—the slight birch and bridegroom on the forehead, three times with the ring, the blessing two wreaths which are afterward placed on their heads by the best man, and at a later part of the rite interchanged over and over again the drinking of wine, the kissing by both of the officiating, and finally the kiss of the bride.

At last we came to the ritual of little plates, which are carried in a bundle, whereupon the hand was nearly level with the execution of a little indentation where the clergymen and bridesmaids it is a part of a skeleton, likewise white and dry. As we ascended, bones, skeletons and skulls became more frequent, but here they had not been picked so clean, for there were fragments of half dry, half putrid flesh still clinging to them.

Amphibians were immediately prepared, and while the Indiana had ready for an attack, many of them clambered on the side of the hill overlooking Custer's camp, and to drive minor from the camp had been discharged.... The Democratic nomination of Arkansas was selected their State ticket by a large majority.... Further dispatches from the camp had been received by the Springfield (Mass.) free-to-all race in 2.10%, 2.15% and 2.2%; with Bodine, Judge Fullerton and Smugler following in the order named.... The national flag presented to the citizens of Atlanta, Ga., by citizens of Cleveland and Cincinnati, was unfurled in that city with considerable ceremony.... Congressional nominations: New York, twenty-third district, Scott, Rep.; Pennsylvania, eighth, Wm. H. Baker, Rep.; Pennsylvania, eighteenth, Thad. M. Shad, Rep., and W. R. Stenger, Dem.

The steamer Arbitrator, from New Orleans to Liverpool, struck an iceberg at sea and sank twenty minutes. The crew escaped in boats and were afterward picked up by a passing vessel.

Loyalists say that on the side of the hill where he had a complete view of the battle, which was not more than a mile and a half distant. Custer began the fight in the ravine near the fort and fully half of his command seemed to be unharmed at the first fire. The soldiers retreated before him in the direction of the fort, and were shot down to a man, and the Indians were scattered.

Only death could stop them. Custer's men were loading a cart with the bodies of their fallen comrades when the Indians charged upon them. The Indians were loaded with bows, sugar plums, and artificial fruit of different sorts. These are presented to the gents, who are expected to help themselves liberally and to take to their friends at home as much as they care to carry. Cooling drinks of various kinds are also brought in never ending supply, and the evening ends sometimes with a halt, sometimes with the deport of bride and bridegroom for their own home.

Woman's Rights.

An exchange says: On the return trip of the excursion train from Harper's Ferry a lady, whose name is unknown, is something in the neighborhood of 300 pounds, having ridden a long distance, standing and in silence, approached a high-toned young man, who was oujeing two seats to himself:

"Sir," said the fat lady, "can you not make room for me on your seat?"

"Well, poor woman, I can't," was the reply.

The old lady swelled up nearly twice her natural size, and, having taken in a full supply of breath, she let out with: "You nasty gold spectacles! well, you ain't got no more of a wife than I have; you are trying to save that seat so as to get out of it. Well, you'll be in a hot tub after the fight, and I exultingly remarked that he had killed many soldiers and one general, but he did not know who he was.

Killed by Cannibals.

The schooner Dancing Wave arrived at Sydney, Australia, from the Solomon group, July 4, with the news of a massacre that had been perpetrated by the South Sea natives, Capt. Harrison and all hands, excepting one, on board the Dancing Wave, having been murdered.

On the twenty-third of April last the Indians attacked a party of whites in the Black Hills and killed two of them, named Gunson and Kearns. The whites took up a defensive position and fought off the Indians, killing or wounding ten of them.

The famous Emma mine has been sold at a sheriff's sale for $144,000, to satisfy a judgment against the company.... Thos. C. Shulman, who is judge of the county and probate court of Oregon County, Mo., and also a Capital minister of high repute, has been arrested for filing distilling taxes.... The sheriff's sale has decided to tolerate Prohibition in Spain.... An Indian who has witnessed the simultaneous hanging of four Indians at Fort Smith, for crimes committed in Indian Territory.... Chase, Eighty-ninth.

Vermont elected the Republican ticket by a large majority.... An outbreak occurring among the natives on the west coast of Africa, three British gunboats ascended the Niger and fought the inhabitants. Several villages were burned.... In the contest for the first heats of the pair-race at Philadelphia, Green Thomas, of the Thames crew, defeated two others of the same crew, in 21.44; John and Gil Ward were beaten by the Brown crew of Faulkner and Hogan in 20.22. Braley, of St. John, N. B., won a heat in a single scull over Ellis Ward, in 22.04; Hanlon, of Toronto, also won a heat over Lester, of Pittsburgh, in 21.49.... As a workman was handling fifteen pounds of nitro-glycerine he saw a cow of Setoria, Long Island, where he was working, dash into the cabin, and, after being wounded, reached the cabin and shot them that killed the animal, engaged on board, and after the fight, he exultingly remarked that he had killed many soldiers and one general, but he did not know who he was.

They had again at the head of skulls and skeletons before us, and we observed that they were all small, and that the articles of clothing intermingled with bones from all parts of the human body, skeletons nearly entire rotting, clothing, human hair and bridal flesh lying there in coarse foul heap, around which the grass was growing luxuriantly. It emitted a sickening odor, like that of a dead horse, and it was here that the dogs had been seeking a hasty retreat.

In the midst of this heap I could distinguish one slight skeleton form still impaled in a chemise, the skull wrapped about with a colored handkerchief, and the body nuked encased in the embroidered footless stockings worn by the Haiglin girls. We looked on in horror as these were removed, and the dogs were driven away from them off to guard them at their lair. At the distance of a hundred yards from our standpoint, it reminded one somewhat of the ruins of Heracleum or Pompeii. There was not a root left, nor a whole wall standing.

The old woman who had been gathered up with the rest of the natives, had been separated from the rest of the hens; the skeletons were nearly all headless. These women had all been beheaded.

Bubbles.

Bites their dear little hearts!—the veriest little tyrants on earth, yet the most abhorred of all humanity. From the very first advent of baby does their reign commence. Grandmas and grandmothers are the first to give in, but the babies are the ones who bring them to the little despot; they pass finds that he must tread softly, with silent steps, open and close doors, delay, and omit smoking his pet cigar lest the fumes should choke him. He must quickly submit to having his eyes dug out, and scratch his hair and whiskers pulled out by the roots, and then, when he is in the proper mood for fun and frolic.

As the young Daundarey gazed at the old lady munching a pie he muttered to himself: "Well, 'pon my life!" but the fat woman gave him a glance, and he rushed into another car and took a seat on a wood box.

A Dumb Curiosity.

A story of a dumb curiosities and its consequences comes from Blanche, O. About a year ago Major Ziegler applied to the U. S. Patent Office for a patent on a device to enable the deaf and dumb to understand written words. The device consists of a small board with a number of letters on it, and a pencil.

Random Notes from the Centennial.
A STROLL THROUGH THE ART GALLERY.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept., 1876.

There is no section of the Exhibition where it is more difficult for a correspondent to particularize than the Department of Art. It is here particularly that the least fastidious critic can but regret the spirit of national pride which has impelled us to exceed all past ventures in the extent and magnitude of our display. Awaking from a dream of art, and with a feeling of intense disgust for the hordes of paper critics, who prate so loudly of the "miserable dabs," the "second classa lot," the want of "expression," or "tone," of "possible shades," and "ranging lights," and "the brilliancy of color," he compels me to sit down. I must still regret that so enormous an exhibit has been crowded into so small a space. Of course it is a physical impossibility for the visitor whose time is limited, to devote even ordinary observation to most of the works of art. Given a single moment before each of the more than four-thousand objects of painting and sculpture, and ten days will not permit one to see them all. While nothing is more certain than that man's art is the work of the individual, and sadly influence his judgment. It is some little satisfaction to be able to state that the greatest crowds are to be found about the most attractive pictures, and the least deserving of study. If the Committee had only have found it practicable to devote a suit of galleries to such abominations as "Rothschild's 'Gettysburg,'" Becker's 'Bipal,' and the several illustrations of 'Death of General...,' and also those of the 'French Nudes,' they would have merited and received the thanks of a large proportion of the visitors.

But there is too much that is superior in the various sections to waste time in finding out what of the hundreds deserving of praise. I have the space to notice but a few. The national type is so marked that one can hardly mistake the source as being either Green, H. R., or this section, or Quincy one, the arrangement to apply to this year alone.

LOCAL NEWS.

REPRESENTATIVE CONFERENCE.

Joint action has been taken by the Sub-committee of the Republican Town Committees of Weymouth and Quincy, in the matter of Representative nominations for the two towns, and they have agreed that Weymouth shall have two of the Representatives, and Quincy one, the arrangement to apply to this year alone.

TEMPERANCE SOCIABLE.

The ladies of the Weymouth Temperance Union have given another manifestation of their zeal in good works, by inviting the friends of the cause to a sociable, held in their rooms on Washington street, last Friday evening, where a generous provision of entertainment was provided, comprising vocal music, organ playing, addresses by J. W. Armington, Esq., Rev. Messrs. Frary and Wright, and select reading by Miss Nettie Knights. Refreshments in profusion were provided by the ladies, and it is hoped that this will be the prelude to a series of similar gatherings.

OLIM.

TEMPERANCE.—A temperance rally, under the auspices of the Woman's Temperance Union, was held in the Methodist Church last Friday evening.

Mr. Reed, intends to employ no one who is not a temperate man, we hope he will meet with the success he deserves.

The Weymouth Iron Co. have started and will, intend to start the two nail factories as soon as the water is high enough to carry them.

RETURNED.—The son and daughter of the late Mr. John Carey, who died in England recently, arrived in East Weymouth last week.

Today we received the first copy of a new literary enterprise, the "Conrier," which is to be issued weekly for our village, and printed in Boston.

Rev. Mr. Walron is to exchange with Rev. J. A. Cruzan next Sunday, and a large congregation is anticipated.

OLIM.

TEMPERANCE.—A temperance rally, under the auspices of the Woman's Temperance Union, was held in the Methodist Church last Friday evening.

Mr. Reed, followed by an address from Mrs. Richards, of Charlestown, who spoke mainly from experience, and who in the course of her remarks said if the women could not vote, they could at least influence one vote. The next address was by Miss Masters, who also favored the audience with several solos. Interesting remarks followed from Mrs. Graycey, Rev. Messrs. Cruzan and Graycey, and Mr. M. E. Hawes, and the meeting closed with singing. The spirit manifested at this meeting showed that whatever interest is the cause of temperance had abated during the summer months, is rapidly reviving.

The mill, which was compelled to stop on account of an insufficient supply of water, started up again on Tuesday.

The Superintendent of the works says that nothing will prevent the mill from running till spring, unless it be from the lack of water.

The Perkins Literary Union will meet on Monday evening, Oct. 2d, in the vestry of Union Church, at 7-30 P. M.

The First National Bank of South Weymouth, has declared a dividend of 4 per cent, payable Oct. 2d.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," says the Scripture, and if the basket of fine grapes presented us by Mr. E. S. Hunt, of the Landing, is an index of character, our friend must be a very nice kind of a man.

G. A. R.—At the meeting of Post 58, of Weymouth, next Tuesday evening, the arrangements for the grand parade in Boston, Oct. 11, will be completed, and the Commander earnestly requests every member to be present at the meeting.

As Post 58 has a prominent standing in the Order, it is expected that each member will do all in his power to sustain this honorable reputation.

The programme comprised a piano solo by W. F. Burrell, solos by Misses Mary Bates, Jessie Rogers, Ruth W. Holbrook and Mr. Willis Bailey, with singing by a quartette, comprising Mrs. Anna Lovell, Mrs. Augusta Rice, Mrs. Emma Lane and Miss Holbrook, and select readings by Miss Ward. Mr. W. F. Burrell officiated as pianist. The President, after the above exercises, said he had the honor of introducing the "Baron of East Weymouth," who would give the audience an exhibition of magic lantern pictures—Rev. S. L. Graycey being the person alluded to. Remarks by Mr. John Stewart were made at the close. The Club cannot be too highly praised for the manner in which these entertainments are conducted.
